

Wireless Access

Wireless service means you can bring your properly-equipped laptop computer into the Library and get instant Internet access without being literally "plugged in."

Wireless card settings

Use the software that came with your computer or wireless card to configure settings and to verify a connection to the Library's wireless network, JCPL-Public.

How secure is the information I transmit over your wireless network?

The amount of security any user has depends completely on the security devices that each patron has installed on his/her own laptop. There are no "firewalls" or security devices on our wireless network.

Wireless printing

You can easily connect to the Library's wireless printing system from your laptop. If you have never printed from a wireless connection before, follow the instructions found at <http://jeffcolibrary.org/wireprint.html> to install the Library's print client. After sending your print request to a printer, use the Self Print Station to pay for and pick up your items.

The following Library locations have wireless access:

Arvada	Golden
Belmar	Lakewood
Columbine	Standley Lake
Edgewater	Wheat Ridge
Evergreen

What is wireless Internet access?

Wireless Internet access means you can access the Internet from inside the Library without any cables. Wireless service uses radio frequencies between your computer and the Internet to connect you.

How do I use it?

Just bring your own laptop with built-in Wi-Fi capabilities or with a Wi-Fi network card installed. No special passwords, user names or settings are required. Jefferson County Public Library (JCPL) uses the Wi-Fi standard (also known as IEEE 802.11g). While older laptops with 802.11b wireless cards can connect to the Library's wireless system, a wireless "g" card will allow better performance and a faster Internet experience.

There are a few different ways to find out what kind of wireless card you have on your laptop. One way is to visit your laptop manufacturer's website and then search for your laptop's model number and view wireless card specs. Another is to view your network properties on your laptop and find the model number or name of your wireless card.

Staff at JCPL cannot assist you with your laptop, Wi-Fi network card or configuration. Due to liability concerns, Library staff members are not permitted to handle or adjust non-library equipment.

Users of JCPL's Wi-Fi system must abide by the Library's Internet Use and Safety Policy and Rules. These can be found online at www.jeffcolibrary.org by clicking on Library & Community Info/Library Info/Policies/Legal Notices.
